Central idea: people have responsibilities toward their families and friends.

Lines of inquiry:

- Similarities and differences between families and friends.
- Different types of families and friends.
- People responsibilities toward each other.

UOI:

In this theme we talked about different types of families and the student prepared a presentation along with a poster about “what makes my family special?” and they presented it in the class.

We also worked on responsibility concept and we watched several videos and discussed them all, then the students were given some responsibilities to do at home for a whole week and the parents were given some coupons to give their children after they do all the responsibilities for a week.

We also ran a charity to help less-fortunate children, the students made crafts and they sold them to their family members and parent, then they collected the collected money to the charity.

MATH:

In math we explored addition, we learned how to add in both vertical and horizontal ways, we also worked on subtraction and we related addition and subtraction using fact families. We explored the turnaround fact as well. We also learned how to use a number line to count on and back.

LA:

In language arts we worked on:

- Long vowels
- Bossy R
- Rhyming words
- Sentence structure
- Syllables

We also had 5 spelling word lists and 5 spelling tests.

Christmas Celebration:

I visited my lovely students for Christmas and we had a lot of fun.

See you soon in our next theme.
